

Did your child receive an autism diagnosis at 12 years or older?

We'd love to hear from you.

Our research study will explore whether there are differences in the characteristics and behaviours of very young Autistic boys and girls and whether these differences account for missed or late autism diagnosis.

Can you help?

We are looking for parents/carers of Autistic youth aged 12 to 25 who were diagnosed with autism at 12 years or older and are living in Australia.

You will be asked to complete a 30-minute online survey about your child's very early development and your experiences in obtaining a diagnosis for your child.

Parents/carers whose children were assigned female at birth will also be invited to participate in an optional follow-up interview.
